

ABSTRACT

A method of identifying the haplotype of an organism comprising the use of multiple duplexed amplifications of a single copy of an isogenic nucleotide sequence of interest coupled with detection of putative nucleotide sequence polymorphisms, as well as a kit and apparatus therefor.